bugs and crashes..Q: Javascript running too slowly (over 1200ms) due to extra processing with every click Is it possible to reduce the speed in which Javascript executes? I realize that it is incredibly unlikely to be necessary, but would it be possible to prevent some actions entirely because they are too expensive and it could slow my website down? I've tested this by running multiple test, each involving clicking a button, and the more buttons I click, the slower the process becomes. Since it's in Javascript,

I can't see any opportunities there. Any suggestions? A: You can get a lot of performance enhancements by moving of the code into the browser itself. You could use a Web Worker to offload processing. JavaScript in the browser will run only as fast as the browser can execute it. More processing time is needed to render the page. Here is a short example:

var running = false; var myWorker = new Worker('myWorker.js'); var timer = setInterval(process, 1000); myWorker.onmessage = function(e) { if (e.data == 'done') { running = false; } }; function process() { if (running == false) {

About the author Enjoy the articles and links below and visit the resources page for more great content and the ability to collaborate, participate and share knowledge.Q: Bash vs C# for creating a user I am new to C#. I want to create a Windows user using C#. The code snippet is as below: string user =

"admin"; string password = "pass"; Process process
= new Process(); process.StartInfo.UseShellExecute
= true; process.StartInfo.FileName = "cmd";
process.StartInfo.Arguments = " /C'mkdir \" + ServerName + "\\root\\c$\\Users" + " && net user \"" + user + "\" /add /fullname:" + user;
process.StartInfo.WindowStyle = ProcessWindowStyle.Hidden;
process.StartInfo.CreateNoWindow = true;
process.Start(); process.WaitForExit(); System.IO.File.Delete(ServerName +
"\\root\\c$\\Users" + user + "\\info.txt"); System.IO.File.Create(ServerName +
"\\root\\c$\\Users" + user + "\\info.txt"); System.IO.File.AppendAllLines(ServerName +
"\\root\\c$\\Users" + user + "\\info.txt", "info:" +
password);

But when I run the above code, I get "The system cannot find the file specified" error on the user command. I need a way to create a user on the C# code itself. I don't need a command prompt.

A: The \ (escape) character needs to be escaped in C# string literals. Use backslash (\) to escape the backslash. You can find this in MSDN: String literals and string interpolation. "mkdir \"" + ServerName + "\\root\\c$\\Users" + " && net user \"" + user + "\" /add /fullname:" + user; JavaScript seems to be disabled in your browser.
